If life seems jolly rotten there's something you've forgotten And that's to laugh and smile and dance and sing When you're feeling in the dumps don't be silly chumps Just purse your lips and whistle, that's the thing And always look on the bright side of life Come on, always look on the bright side of life (from the Life of Brian) This is Jan's first foray into self-publishing though many of these poems have been read, performed or produced privately over the years to small audiences, often in classrooms, where she was successful in making poetry writing "cool" An astute observer of human nature and people lover, she was often motivated to respond to everyday, mundane situations which have presented themselves during her life. Having been on the receiving end of life's many curve-balls, she has managed to remain resolute and resilient by responding with humour, often self-deprecating, in the poetic form. For Jan, writing poetry was both a cathartic and therapeutic way to expressing certain events by transforming into them little pieces of history that could be remembered and laughed about years later. Hence many of the events are derived from personal experiences and real events, though the names have been changed to avoid offence. Subjects concerning getting older, menopause, losing weight, having naughty children, naughty school students and teenagers are a direct result of having them or dealing with them. Other titles have been inspired by people, particularly Pam Ayres and Roald Dahl where she has attempted to restyle their work with an Australian twist.

This book is about how success comes in many ways good and bad. It is about living. This book is about guiding your kids in positive directions and training your mind to help you and not destroy you the book is about beliefs and the power they can have over us weather they are false or true the power is the same. This is about focus and determination, about the way i felt with uncertainty, doubts, frustration, depression, anger, desperateness, willingness, hollowness and how i learned to fill that emptiness. This book is about the pain i inflicted on my kids and how i spent the rest of my life repairing it. This is about having no idea of how to be a father, a friend, a partner, a husband and this book is about learning to understand yourself and others.

A diary of a young poet as her life is transformed by the onset of Multiple Sclerosis and the journey through social exclusion.

We hear about all sorts of problems though our lives that most people find it hard to understand. The author Geoffrey McClelland has written this in the hope of shedding some light on the enormous benefits of subjecting yourself to the horrors of change when it is needed. The writing in this book will give you a different way to deal with all of life's issues! We don't need to try too hard, we don't need to force things to happen, we just need to do. The content has been proven to work with enormous accuracy and blatant truth for centuries! So no matter what anyone says to you to discredit these truths, it will not make any difference to them, they are part of us and nature weather you like it or not! If you dismiss the laws of nature do it at your parrel. No one can create a life they choose without following the truths in one way or another no matter how hard you try, you will fall time and time again! Step up and see the real direction that everyone needs to manifest to create a life that you choose, and not one that you thought you had to have!

This is the first comprehensive study guide covering all aspects of pediatric critical care medicine. It fills a void that exists in learning resources currently available to pediatric critical care practitioners. The major textbooks are excellent references, but do not allow concise reading on specific topics and are not intended to act as both text and study guide. There are also several handbooks available, but these are usually written for general pediatric residents and lack the advanced physiology and pathophysiology required for the higher level pediatric critical care practitioner

This extensively updated textbook is a comprehensive study guide that covers pediatric critical care principles and specific disease entities commonly encountered by the pediatric critical care medicine (PCCM) practitioner. Pathophysiologic aspects unique to the pediatric patient are emphasized. The first edition has become a highly utilized text for pediatric critical care fellows. The second edition will prove even more valuable to the fellow in-training and indeed to any clinical pediatric intensivist. In addition to updating the chapters from the previous edition, there are new chapters on topics such as central nervous structure and function, palliative care, child abuse and practical biostatistics. Pediatric Critical Care: Text and Study Guide is an invaluable clinically focused resource for PCCM practitioners. Allowing for concise reading on specific topics, this book acts as both text and study guide covering advanced physiology, pathophysiology, diagnostic considerations and treatment approaches that should be mastered by the higher level PCCM practitioner. The large number of illustrations complements the text in each chapter that also includes key references and case-orientated questions that help reinforce important ideas learned in the chapter.
